ACHTUNG: Am 21.10.2011 (1. Sitzung) findet der Kurs in Raum 2.02 statt!

This course provides an introduction to the specifics of language structure and sets linguistics in its context within cognitive science. After a general introduction to the nature and structure of language, we study the various components of language such as speech sounds (Phonetics and Phonology), words and their internal structure (Morphology), phrases and sentence structure (Syntax), and the meaning of words and sentences (Semantics).

There will be additional one-hour-tutorials for groups of around 25 participants. Regular attendance is compulsory. Details will be arranged in the first week of term.

Marcel PITTEROFF

DO 11.30 – 13.00

17.17

This course deepens the syntactic analysis of English sentences as introduced in the course 'Introduction to Linguistics'. We will proceed through the different levels of description:

- the functional level like subject, object, etc.
- the thematic level like agent, theme, etc.
- the formal level: from word classes and phrasal categories to complete tree structures, and thereby we will deal with various syntactic phenomena, both on the phrasal and on the sentential level. The seminar has a strong practical focus; the students will learn to apply syntactic argumentation themselves.

Lehramt (neu): Teilmodul des Pflichtmoduls 7 "Linguistic Levels"

Silke FISCHER*FR 11.30 – 13.00*17.91

In this course we will see how morphological theory rules out words like **dethroneless*, **Canadas goose* (plural), or **arrivable*. In short, we will discuss morphological principles that regulate word formation processes like derivation, compounding, inflection, and we will consider the interaction of morphology and argument structure. Moreover, we will take a look at the basic properties of Distributed Morphology, a recent morphological theory.

Introduction to Semantics

Credits: 5 Lehramt (alt): G3-Proseminar	Prerequisites: G1, Introduction to Linguistics BA HF: Aufbaumodul Sprachwissenschaft (Pr.Nr. 1610 oder 1620)	BA-Leistungspunkte Anglistik: 3 BA NF: Aufbaumodul Sprachwissenschaft (Pr.Nr. 1410)
---	---	---

Gianina IORDACHIOAIA*DI 09.45 – 11.15*11.62

In this course we will first discuss basic semantic notions like the difference between sense and reference (e.g. the German chancellor vs. Angela Merkel), semantic classes of verbs/predicates, tense, aspect and modality. In the end we will be able to theoretically explain, for instance, why the English progressive is compatible with some verbs, but not with others: compare "John is driving a car" with *"*John is owning a car"*. In the second part of the course we will set the grounds for a formal approach to natural language semantics by determining the kind of objects words may refer to and how we can combine them to derive the interpretation of sentences. For this, we will introduce and make use of basic notions of set theory and predicate logic.

Introduction to Syntax

Florian SCHÄFER*MI 11.30 – 13.00*17.25

This course gives an introduction to the main tools and topics of (Generative) Syntax. Its aim is to teach students

- a) the main principles of syntactic theory
- b) to identify different syntactic phenomena and
- c) how to build arguments out of these phenomena that lead up to theoretical proposals.

The students should become able to relate data to theory and theory to data, thereby cultivating their skills of syntactic argumentation, i.e. to formulate and to test hypotheses.

Matthias JILKA*DO 11.30 – 13.00*11.82

The seminar on Dialectology consists of a theoretical and practical part. First, we will look at the importance of mechanisms and causes of language change, which lead to the formation of new dialects and eventually languages (geographical and sociological aspects are especially considered).

The second part will provide an overview of dialectal variation in the English, covering the British Isles, North America and the southern hemisphere (Australia, New Zealand, South Africa).

17.23

The aim of this course is twofold. First, we will consolidate and enhance your knowledge of syntax regarding core issues of Generative Grammar. A further part of the course then is dedicated to contemporary syntactic theory and will make you familiar with the Minimalist Program (MP). As its name suggests, the MP is not a theory but a mode of investigation, searching for a restricted core of deep abstract principles. Good knowledge of syntax is obligatory.

Early Modern English

Credits: 7	Requirements: assignments and term paper	BA-Leistungspunkte Anglistik: 6 MA-Leistungspunkte Anglistik: 12

Artemis ALEXIADOU

DI 11.30 – 13.00

17.12

This course will examine the Early Modern English (EME) period (1500-1800). The class will focus on the morphological, phonological, syntactic, and semantic differences between EME and earlier stages of English as well as Modern English. It will also address the issue of language/grammar change in general.

Argument structure: the syntax-lexicon interface

Credits: 7	Requirements: assignments and term paper	MA-Leistungspunkte Anglistik: 12

Artemis ALEXIADOU

DO 11.30 – 13.00

17.72

Any theory of the relation between the lexicon and the syntax must deal with two issues: first, how lexical entries are structured and organized; and second, the ways lexical information is made visible to syntax. The behavior of verbs is a particularly illuminating case to address the complex interaction between the syntax and the lexicon, especially because of the existence of argument alternations. Given that a noun phrase bearing a particular theta-role can appear in different syntactic positions for the same verb, we need to develop a theory of what controls this mapping. Argument alternations will thus play a central role in this class. In particular, this course investigates the following two questions: (a) how do we explain the limited set of argument structure types? and (b) how do lexical structures relate to syntactic structures?

Phonological Rules and Representation

Credits: 7	Requirements: analysis exercises and final exam	BA-Leistungspunkte Anglistik: 6

Matthias JILKA

DO 15.45 – 17.15

11.62

This seminar starts by describing the basic ideas of Generative Phonology and then extends the analysis to a thorough examination of the relationship between phonological rules and representations by looking at various phonological processes in the languages of the world. This will allow us to discover specific phenomena (e.g. rule ordering, absolute neutralization etc.) that will provide us with insight into the general principles of phonological organization. The seminar also covers the representation of phonemes in the form of feature trees and connects phonological with morphological processes via Lexical Phonology.

Old English

Credits: 7	Requirements: t. b. a.	BA-Leistungspunkte Anglistik: 6

Susanne LOHRMANN

DI 09.45 – 11.15

17.12

The main goal of this course is to discuss the differences between Old English and Present Day English, and to understand how (and maybe why) the language changed to such an extent. Next to investigating phonological, morphological, and, in particular, syntactic changes we will translate and analyse some Old English text passages. We will also discuss some recent papers, in particular regarding the grammar of Old English.
